Frequently Asked Questions

What is PEMF?

Pulsed Electro-Magnetic Field technology is a soothing modality that stimulates and exercises the cells to address cellular dysfunction and support overall wellness.

What happens during a PEMF session?

The powerful Pulse Equine PEMF devices send pulsing magnetic fields through a soft, flexible rubber coil and, using our exclusive line of PEMF accessories, deliver it into the body. As this happens, the cell membrane is permeated, and releases waste, toxins, and inflammation while receiving oxygen and nutrients. This process stimulates and exercises the cells, giving them more energy to do their jobs better.

How long does a PEMF Session take?

A PEMF session on a large animal lasts 30-45 minutes, while small animal PEMF sessions last 20-60 minutes, depending on how many areas are worked. These session times are much faster than those of other systems on the market, as our unique Large Animal Loops deliver 2 separate pulsing electromagnetic fields and give the opportunity to pulse the legs and body at the same time!

How are PEMF sessions performed?

Our unique Pulse Equine soft, flexible rubber "loops" can be placed over any large animal's body. When the machine is turned on and the pulses are delivered to the body, the strength may be adjusted to meet the animal's comfort level. This process is entirely non-invasive and requires no medication or sedation. Animals LOVE PEMF therapy!

Why do a session on the whole animal when the problem is in one area?

PEMF is viewed as the Swiss Army knife of wellness, because instead of treating a specific system or condition, it stimulates and exercises every cell in the body so that the body as a whole can do its job better. Using PEMF on the entire body charges every bodily system, not just the area of issue. As a result, when PEMF is used for whole-body wellness, cells throughout the body will be exercised, take in nutrients, and release waste and toxins.

Can PEMF sessions be performed at shows?

From a performance standpoint, it is just fine to use PEMF on an animal on show, race, or competition day. We do, however, always recommend checking with the relevant governing body to ensure that PEMF is allowed on site within that organization.
